After testing the game with youth:

On the 14th of June we met with young people in one of the local high-schools, in order to test the game which is being created within the frame of our project.

The poster informing people about the event was posted on our website as well as on our Facebook profile. The printed one was hung in the school, at the Voluntary Labour Corp and in our Foundation's office.

15 participants took part in the testing activity.

The prototype of the game was tested by young people divided into five groups of 3. The contest went well and quite fast. The leader of the testing activities noticed, that cards which are used in the game, should be divided into different colours in order to vary the categories and make them more visible. Most participants claimed that there should be more points that can be scored in this game, as well as a wider range of professions/workers so that the game would be played longer. Some players mentioned the appearance of the game pointing out its design and quality that need to be developed. Of course the material that was tested on these classes was a draft prototype and the final product will be much more professional. All participants stated that the general idea of the game is unique and interesting. The instructions needs some improvement.

The atmosphere was very nice, and the time was spent efficiently. Soon we will inform you about other testing activities.

Stay tuned and visit our website for more info! See you soon! :)
